DECLASSIFIED

SUNDAY
JUNE 20, 1954

We went down to Versailles for lunch, where we had the Jean de Beaumonts, the Turner McBaines (Turner has been in Europe since January representing the Standard Oil Company of California in the conferences [redacted] held to try to settle the Iranian oil dilemma), Elsa Maxwell, and Dickie Fellowes Gordon.

Last night I had an earful from Wallis about her famous quarrel with La Maxwell. I had thought it all settled, but apparently the fires are blazing merrily beneath the lava.

Tommy came down in the afternoon with a suggested cable draft, and I wrote a couple of my own during the course of the evening which I will reconsider tomorrow.
